ATASCOSA COUNTY RESPONDS TO QUESTIONS REGARDING POTENTIAL DATA CENTER DEVELOPMENT

JOURDANTON, TEXAS – Atascosa County has received numerous questions regarding reports of a potential data center project that may be located within the county.

At this time, Atascosa County has not been contacted by the company associated with the proposed project and has not had direct discussions regarding the development. Because of that, County officials are unable to confirm many of the details currently being circulated.

Like many residents, County officials have become aware of information circulating online and throughout the community. We understand there are questions regarding what this project could mean for Atascosa County and what, if any, role the County may have moving forward.

The County is paying close attention to developments and will continue working to gather information as it becomes available.

We appreciate the questions we have received and as additional information becomes available, Atascosa County will continue sharing updates with residents and answering questions as we work to better understand the potential project.
